February 13-17, 2019 New Delhi

Organized by : Association of Occupational & Environmental Health (AOEH),
Dept. of Community Medicine, Lady Harding Medical College & Vardhman Mahavir Medical College and Occupational Health & Safety Management Consultancy Service (OHS-MCS)

Pre-conference Workshop Pre-hospital trauma management of Occupational injury (14th Feb 2019)

The Occupational health is a vital component for overall health and development of any nation. Although India has witnessed a surge in curiosity and awareness about the concerns for occupational health and safety, but still there is a huge gap in demand and supply of occupational health services. Occupational injuries remain an important issue worldwide particularly after the economic globalization and industrialization

Occupational injuries are associated with lots of suffering and loss at individual, community, societal and organizational levels. According to the International Labour Organization (ILO); occupational injuries and diseases represented 4% of total Gross National Product. World Health Organization estimated that 45,696,000 work-related injuries and 142,000 fatalities occur worldwide each year. The incidents not only result in suffering and hardship for the workers and their families, but also add costs to the global community due to productivity loss and medical and other expenses. Strategies to prevent workplace injuries vary widely and include engineering controls, protective equipment, education/training, and regulatory and management practices. A healthy workforce further adds to the rising of their business flagship.

This workshop will provide you to strengthen up your public relations, as this common platform will be shared by scholars, doctors, practitioners of occupational health, environmental science, ministry of health, labour, environment and forest, renewable energy, industry, mines, agriculture, HRD, law etc. The schedule for the workshop is as follows:
